No, the "bath-tub trust" is not the Saturday night one.

According to Roosevelt, Judge Baldwin is a rail, reading backward.

In view of three hunting accidents there this week, Middlebury might well be Muddlebury.

A little while ago Eugene N. Foss was declaring that the Republican campaign in Massachusetts had gone to pieces. He hasn't been saying it lately, though.

Candidate Stimson has issued his Declaration of Independence—from Theodore Roosevelt, but he is very much pleased to get the colonel's support, nevertheless.

Such little savings as the spoiling of a junket by the committee on town lines to Rutland county in order to settle a dispute between Danby and Mt. Taber will be appreciated by the state. A dispute of that nature ought to be settled right in Montpelier, and the disputants should be compelled to bring their case before the committee there. The committee on town lines can make as just a report that way as by going to the disputed territory.

Hand-to-mouth living finds its full demonstration in Eastport, Me., where the smoked herring business of the coming winter promises to be light, because of the scarcity of fish. Since the working population of Eastport is largely dependent on the smoked herring business, there will be hard times this winter, unless some new work is brought in. Therefore, the board of trade there is feverishly working to secure new industries to tide over the herring business' ebb. Just how the board of trade is to introduce new industries in time to counteract the dullness of the winter fish business is not apparent. Ordinarily new industries are not picked off the bushes, else Barre and some other places would have been out with their pails long ere this. Nevertheless, the board of trade is to be commended for its energy, which ought to be rewarded with some good prospects in a smoked herring horizon.

THE MUNICIPAL DANCE HALL TRIAL.

The municipal dance hall in Milwaukee is a marked development of the administration in that city, the attendants at the place being permitted to go on the floor for a nickel. Bizarre as the plan appears to be, there is nevertheless much to be said in its favor. The fact that the dance is to be run by the municipality presupposes that it will be conducted in a decent, orderly fashion and that the attendance on the dance will be restricted to those people who behave themselves. One of the great evils of life in the large cities is the low dance hall, and the tendency of the new municipal dance will be toward driving the keepers of those doubtful places of amusement out of business. If Milwaukee's new municipal dance hall shall do as much as that, it will be fulfilling the expectation of its sponsors and contributing much to the betterment of the people of the city.

THE COLOR OF HUNTING CLOTHES.

Concerning the bill now before the Vermont legislature requiring hunters to don red when they go into the woods, the Boston Transcript indulges in a half-column of merry persiflage, finally suggesting that after the hunters have all been properly garbed in red they pass in review before the governor before entering the woods. The contemporary's effort makes humorous reading, but, after all, the intent of the bill is quite serious and not so unreasonable as might be supposed. It is scarcely expected that the bill will become a law and that the prevailing hunting color in Vermont

You are thinking a very poor brand of thought if you think you know Suits or Overcoats before you have studied our stock. We have seen the finest from the best makers and we selected so as to have our stock represent all that is desirable for this season.

We do not advertise any one maker, for there is not one that stands alone at the top.

Some have made a hit this fall with a special Overcoat, another has scored a bull's eye in a certain Raincoat, another a particular brand of Young Men's Suits; and so it goes.

But we buy the very choicest.

Let us demonstrate.
Suits from $10.00 to $35.00.
Overcoats from $7.50 to $40.00.

shall be red through compulsion; yet as a matter of self-protection the hunters themselves should by personal legislation attend to a very important matter, rather than to delegate the legislation to the wisdom of the general assembly. The idea of enacting a statute to establish a certain hunting color is what probably appeals to the humorous vein of the Boston contemporary; and it is indeed rather far-fetched as a matter of law-making. However, if the very nature of the bill causes it to be accorded wide publicity, as now seems certain, then the introduction of it will not have been entirely in vain, since it will bring home to the hunters themselves the value of a hunting garb which is distinct from the coloring of the animals which are the targets of several thousand guns in six days' time. Many times, if the Boston contemporary knew it, hunters have been slain in the Vermont woods because they were attired in clothing which resembled in coloring the skins of animals. Other hunters, seeing these persons moving about in the underbrush and mistaking them for game, have fired away without taking pains to determine just what the objects were, with direful results. A large percentage of hunters are thus careless when they get into the woods and always will be. Hence it behooves the entire class of nimrods to lessen as much as possible the danger by wearing colors which are distinct from those of game, and if the modest bill now before the legislature, although doomed for the waste basket, proves as a sort of warning it will have served a good purpose.

Importers and Immunity.

The reply of the treasury department to the numerous inquiries as to what the department intends to do with the importers who are found guilty of customs frauds by means of undervaluation is exactly what might have been expected: viz., that the government does not intend to permit anyone to escape justice so long as the department receives "the cash that is coming to it"; that the department declines to relieve the guilty importers of the full penalty that may be inflicted by the law, and that immunity from imprisonment lies solely in the discretion of the courts. As yet no names have been made public, but it is said that these will not be given out until the subject is ready to be brought to a conclusion. The reply of the department reads, in part, as follows: "Every case presented to the department for action is treated upon its own merits, and it is beyond the jurisdiction or authority of this department to promise immunity to any person who violates the law. In cases where compromises are accepted, it is because the department of justice, in concurrence with this department, believes that the settlement of the question is for the best interests of public justice." As to decision whether, on conviction, the guilty parties shall escape the added penalty of imprisonment, the department declares there is no authority of law by which it can make such a decision, and the matter rests entirely with the court. "Crooked" importers are welcome to any encouragement they may be able to obtain from this reply.—Manchester Union.

Vermont's Border Bars.

The attempt of the Moody brothers to secure action at the hands of the Vermont legislature in the matter of changing the law as to the operation of the liquor law in border towns of the state was a quiet assumption of extra-territorial rights not often witnessed. As the law stands, it prevents the establishment of a place licensed to sell liquor in a town within two miles of the border unless within a village. The Moody brothers have charge of the well-known Moody school in Northfield, Mass., and complain that the presence of a licensed hotel in South Vernon, Vt., has had influence on the school and seek to have the law amended by the insertion of the word "incorporated" before the word "village," which would effectually abolish the place in South Vernon. The basis upon which the amendment was sought was that of interstate comity or reciprocity with Massachusetts; it was aptly pointed out by Mr. Carl of Canaan that the applicants might urge reciprocity with better grace if they had first secured the passage of equivalent legislation in their home state.—Rutland Herald.

County and City Court Matters—Former Adjourns to Nov. 15.

Considerable business was done yesterday in city court, the first victim of the law being Arthur White, alleged to have sold liquor illegally to Roscoe Irwin, the boy sentenced Thursday in county court to the industrial school for the remainder of his minority. Irwin testified that White sold him a quart of whiskey for $1.20 last week, on which he became intoxicated. White was bound over to county court and bail was fixed at $500, which he was unable to furnish. He was accordingly lodged in the county jail. D. C. Rich pleaded guilty to a charge of hunting without a license and was fined $10 and costs amounting to $6.70. Mr. Rich is the Warren man who shot a deer before taking out a license and then procured one, having it dated back to cover the date on which he shot the deer. Wallace Estey of Taunton, Mass., was arrested in Warren also, on the charge of being without a non-resident's license, is still in jail, waiting for a further investigation of the matter.

In county court yesterday, Miss Preston of Waterbury was granted a divorce from Daniel D. Preston of Walsfield on the charge of intolerable severity. She was decreed the custody of the younger of two children, $700 in cash and $8 a month alimony, to be used toward the support of the child. Court has adjourned till Tuesday, November 15, when chancery cases will be taken up.

Postmaster Brown does not feel at all sure that Montpelier is one of the cities designated by the government as the headquarters of a postal savings bank, as the only notification he has received has been through the newspapers. As they are sometimes able to get inside information concerning government matters, it is possible that their statements were correct, but Mr. Brown thinks it strange that he received no further notification.

REMARKABLE RECORD

Flesh-forming Food That Succeeds Nearly Every Time.

A man or woman might as well starve outright as to take food into the stomach and not have it assimilated, yet in Barre, as well as in every other town and city, there are many people who are thin, pale and seem underfed, simply because the food they eat is not assimilated, and fails to make good blood and firm flesh.

Samose, the wonderful flesh-forming food, taken before or after meals, mingles with the food, so that it is assimilated by the system and makes rich blood and pleasing plumpness. No one can use it for a week or ten days without a noticeable gain in weight. Statistics show that out of every one hundred people who commence the use of Samose, 98 will find a full gain in weight and restoration of health and strength.

Anyone who is thin, weak, scrawny and emaciated can put 50c on deposit with D. F. Davis and take home a box of Samose. If the treatment does not give a noticeable increase in good, firm flesh and restore strength and health, he will return the money without any question.
